Information about COVID-19 Testing

We want to tell you some new information about the research study you are in.

Before some of your study visits, you will need to get a test to see if you have the coronavirus (you may also have heard of it as COVID-19). We will let you know which visits you need to take the test for.

What is a COVID-19 test?

A health care worker will put a swab (like a very long Q-tip) into your nose. It might seem like the swab is going too far up your nose, but this is the right way to do the test.

Will it hurt?

The swab in your nose might hurt, but it is quick and the hurt should go away soon.

Do you have any questions?

You can ask questions any time. You can ask now. You can ask later. You can talk to me or you can talk to someone else.

We will give you a copy of this form to keep.
